

Sirs: The petitions being circulated to ban individual ISPs are at odds with the free-enterprise system and are detrimental to people's right to choose their service providers. Computer access is necessary in this age for business as well as personal use, and should be free of monopoly by big companies.